

Klorofyl Room at Oslo fair

Oslo Design Fair is Norway's largest trade fair and most important meeting place for the design- and interior industries. The 2018 event, to be held January 24th to January 26th, will explore the topic of 'New/Old/New' through workshops, talks and exhibitions showcasing close to 400 exhibitors and the best of Norwegian craft and design.

This year's theme reflects a time where 3D printing is mixed with traditional techniques, where architects build modern structures inspired by historical aesthetics, and where old design furniture are given a new lease of life through relaunches.

The bathroom in the tendency exhibition was a interpretation of the chlorophyl trend. A development of the green trend we have seen for a while now, with big trees in our living rooms, growing your own vegetables and also how the bathroom is a room where we spend more time. It shows a tendency on how we see rooms in a new way, a bathroom can be almost like a living room.

Our Stand collection by Norm Architects will be showcase in Klorofyl Room, permanent exhibition during the fair.
